

DOOR COUNTY RESIDENTS WANTED

Sept. 13th Town Hall Sessions Seek Resident Input

Destination Door County has gathered a group of community leaders and local organizations to create a Destination Master Plan for our community. This dynamic, resident-influenced long-term planning document will help guide sustainable growth and development in Door County. The plan will be built around the needs of residents, visitors and stakeholders ranging from tourism to economic development to county planning.

Since May of this year, we have been in the research phase of the process. We've conducted one-on-one interviews, held focus group meetings, and received more than 1,200 online surveys back from residents and stakeholders.

The Destination Master Plan will create a strategic and shared vision for the future of Door County's economy to ensure its long-term economic sustainability while preserving the environment, quality of life for residents and quality of place. As important as the final document is, equally important is the planning process that integrates inclusive community engagement.

The input of our residents is critical to the overall effectiveness of the Destination Master Plan. All Door County residents are invited to participate in the conversation and share their thoughts at one of three upcoming community town hall events where our consultants will ask for feedback that will support the development of the Destination Master Plan. We invite you to join us at one of the following public meetings: No pre-registration is necessary.
